

YOUNG WIFEHOOD

Boston, Mass., 152 Shawmut Ave., Oct. 25, 1902.
After I had been married about four months I felt my health generally decline. I seemed to lose the light step and dragged wearily along instead. My appetite failed me and I lost health and strength. I was nervous and had shooting pains through my limbs and stomach while bearing down pains and constant headaches added to my misery. The menstrual flow became more and more profuse and I was unfit to attend to my daily duties. My husband called in three different physicians and I took enough medicine to kill or cure a dozen women, but it all had no effect on me whatever, until I took Wine of Cardui. In a few days I felt a change for the better, my general health improved and at the next time of my periods my flow was more natural and I was in less pain. Gradually I recovered my health and strength and am now in perfect health. I take an occasional dose of Wine of Cardui which keeps me well.
I am happy to give you this endorsement.

Bud Ricker
President, Back Bay Woman's Club.

Why don't you try for the same health Mrs. Ricker has? It is easy to secure if you take Wine of Cardui according to directions. Wine of Cardui strengthens weak and worn-out women of any age and assists the mother and housewife to bear her exacting duties. Wine of Cardui makes women fit for all the duties of womanhood.

It will relieve the pains of irregularity, cures falling of the womb, leucorrhoea, ovarian troubles, and has been known to remove what physicians considered dangerous tumors. Women who use Wine of Cardui do not suffer at the monthly periods. They do not suffer hysterical attacks, because Wine of Cardui gives them strong nerves freed from the irritation of female suffering.

A $1.00 bottle of Wine of Cardui purchased from your druggist will keep you free from pain.

New Public Buildings at the Capital.

Congress has again adjourned without adequately complying with the reasonable requests of the Executive Departments for proper buildings in which to transact the public business at the seat of government.

It is true that provision has been made for structures near the Capitol in which the necessary offices for senators and representatives will be provided. These edifices when completed will afford great relief to the legislative department, and to that extent have been a creditable, if a somewhat selfish, response to imperative demands.

But in the meantime the judiciary department and nearly, or quite all the executive departments, are left in positions where great inconvenience is suffered, and more than that, where immense expenditures are necessitated in providing rented quarters at extravagant prices for carrying on various branches of departmental work.

Every year witnesses additional bureaus, divisions and departments of the public service, and the steady expansion of nearly every existing branch of the old departments. The buildings in which the departments are housed stately as some of them appear, and commodious as many of them were when originally erected, have long since been outgrown and other buildings more or less remote have been successively leased, until the aggregate rentals now paid are something enormous, and the inconvenience of doing the public business at arm's length has become almost intolerable.

The treasury department will pay during the current year more than $50,000 for rented quarters used by its own bureaus, including those for storage of valuable files, account books and documents, which should long since have been provided for in the safe and commodious "Hall of Records" so many times called for by the public exigencies.

The postoffice department has many rented buildings, including one occupied by the Rural Free Delivery branch, another by the supply division, another by the mail bag repair shop, and various subsidiary activities of colossal business institution.

The war department, the navy department, and the interior department all overflow into numerous rented buildings, heterogeneous in character and confused to location, but all paid for at exorbitant rates.

The department of justice and the department of commerce and labor are both housed entirely in rented quarters, neither of them having any government structure to call its home, even as the headquarters of the chief of the department.

It is stated that the aggregate rentals to be paid this year for all the accommodations, poor as they are, furnished to the government in the city of Washington for the transaction of its business, will amount to more than $300,000. As the government can readily borrow money at 2 per cent per annum, this outlay expresses the interest on $15,000,000. That this sum could be economically and advantageously expended in building permanent quarters for these offices is the opinion of the SENTRY, confirmed by that of all disinterested persons who have examined the subject.

Why is it not done? Largely because, as usual, the United States Senate stands as an obstruction to the policy of erecting proper buildings as fast as they are needed by the growth of the federal business. And the motives which inspire senators to obstruct so wise a plan are alleged to be on a par with some other motives which actuate them in like policies of delay and non-action.

The senate is especially amenable to local pressure from capitalists who enjoy princely incomes from renting these often old and uncomfortable structures to the government for its offices. The combination of men who are getting rich out of rentals paid by the government has influence within the senate, which is hard to overcome. Some of these capitalists are themselves ex-senators; others are friends, relatives, or political backers of senators. If the time should come when enough government buildings were ready to house all the business and employees of the departments, the worthless old structures now used would lie idle on the hands of their owners, for they have long since been outranked by modern buildings, which the people of the city engaged in private business enterprises greatly prefer.

This is one of the accumulating counts in the indictment against the senate, for which the people of the country will be inclined at an early date to put this venerable and venerated legislative body on trial in the court of last resort.

Fleet Collegians in Relays.

Philadelphia, Pa., April 29.—The eyes of the college world are turned toward Franklin Field today. Upon the famous arena of the University of Pennsylvania the pick and flower of American college athletes will strive with every effort to win glory and fame and the plaudits of the multitude. The occasion is the eleventh annual intercollegiate and interscholastic relay contests under the auspices of the athletic department of the University of Pennsylvania. Never before in the history of college athletics has an event of greater importance been held or one in which a keener pitch of enthusiasm has been aroused.

The entries reach the enormous total of more than 1000 men. The big eastern colleges such as Yale, Harvard, Columbia, Princeton, Pennsylvania, Georgetown and Cornell are well represented, while the smaller institutions that have entered number several score. From the west have come the crack teams of the Universities of Chicago, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Michigan and Purdue.

The most sensational fights are looked for this year in the one and two-mile races. The one-mile event brings together the famous quartettes from Yale, Pennsylvania exciting race is looked for in the two-mile event. In this Yale and Pennsylvania are again the principal entries, though the fast team from the University of Wisconsin makes the issue a doubtful one.

In the special events a good race is expected in the 100-yards, which will bring together Sahick of Harvard; Seitz, the new Georgetown flyer; Dear, of Pennsylvania; Torrey, of Yale, and Rolon-Miller of Princeton.

In the other special events chief interest centers in the shot-put. This will bring together for the fourth time the two foremost shot-putters among college athletes, W. W. Coe of Somerville, and Ralph Rose, the California giant.

A Bad Hobo.

A Tangent correspondent reports that a few days ago a hobo went to a farm house, where the farmer's wife was alone, and demanded a warm breakfast, which she gave him. After he had gotten his fill he demanded what money she had, which, amounting to only 25c, was given him and he departed.
